Lheidli T'enneh Cemetery, Prince George: a documented history

by J. Kent Sedgwick, with contributions
by John Harris and William J. Poser

2012. ISBN 978-0-921087-62-5. Color photos.
Index. 70 p.

There is, in the City of Prince George in central BC, a unique historical site. It is a burial ground sacred to the Lheidli T'enneh Nation, a legal Indian Reserve within Fort George Park in the city, and it has been in use for about 135 years. This is a study of the origins and changes in that cemetery.

CNC Press is pleased to publish this history, completed by Kent Sedgwick just before he passed away in December. The book includes a commemorative introduction by John Harris, and a description of "The Carrier gravestones in Fort George Park" by William J. Poser.
