

RESPECT IN THE WORKPLACE RESOURCES FOR EMPLOYERS

A respectful workplace is one where integrity, fairness, collaboration, and trust are the norm.

Respectful workplaces support the BC Public Service Corporate Values and Government's commitment to anti-racism and gender equity.

A respectful workplace:

- Is inclusive
- Values diversity
- Clearly communicates expectations around behavior
- Promotes employee health and safety
- Provides resources and training to resolve disputes
- Strives for improvement
- Has open channels of communication

Respectful workplaces are productive, rewarding, and enjoyable for everyone. They can also improve employee health, well-being, and engagement.

Resources for creating a respectful workplace

The BC Public Service Agency provides employees with information, tools, and services to help build and maintain respectful workplaces.

Get available resources