The District Learning Commons provides relevant resources to support differentiated and cross curricular instruction to support learning. Large resource kits, DVDs, realia, models, reading materials choral, operetta and professional learning resources are available.

Historical Research Collection

The School District's historical research collection, a project initiated by the PG Retired Teachers' Education Heritage Committee, is also available via the web catalogue. Inventoried items include paper records or documents such as journals, policy manuals, minutes of meetings, school annuals, and locally developed curriculum. Physical objects such as team uniforms, trophies, flags, mascots and student belongings are also of interest. A growing collection of photographs of school buildings, dormitory life, sporting, education and social events, gives a picture of what the district was like. If interested, please call the Education Heritage Committee: 250-563-5862 or 250-964-6810.

Library Services are provided to staff and physicians across the Northern Health service region. Information and reference services provide support to evidence-informed decision-making for direct and indirect patient care, clinical and organizational education, quality improvement, research, and program planning.

The collection consists of online and print specialized medical books and journals; physician, nursing, and pharmacy point-of-care tools; and a core selection of biomedical research databases. Physical materials are loaned to staff only while some online content is available through interlibrary loan services upon request from a library in the NH region.

Access

- All Northern Health staff, physicians and affiliated physicians
- Students in the Northern Medical Program (selected services)
- CNC or UNBC nursing students working onsite (selected services)
- Librarians (public, academic, school) in the region supporting a patron with a health literacy query and requiring information via established loan processes
- Patients who access the library while at UHNBC will be assisted to locate patient information resources if requested; however, library staff do not provide any advice on the information obtained. There is no public computer access in the library.
